

What is a Parish Council and why become a Parish Councillor for Edlesborough Parish.

WHAT IS A PARISH COUNCIL?

A parish council is a local authority that makes decisions on behalf of the people in the parish. It is the level of government closest to the community, and in the case of Edlesborough Parish Council (EPC), the Buckinghamshire Council Authority is immediately above EPC in the hierarchy.

As it is the authority closest to the people, a parish council is invariably the place people will go with concerns or ideas. For this reason, they are a vital part of any community.

Edlesborough Parish is divided into three wards and EPC has 9 councillors (5 for Edlesborough, 2 for Dagnall and 2 for Northall) who stand for election every four years.

WHY BECOME A PARISH COUNCILLOR?

If you've never been to a parish council meeting before, you may be forgiven for thinking that parish councillors are a group of (probably older) people who meet now and then in a draughty village hall. If, however, you live in a community where something 'big' has happened, you'll know that when people in the community need support and guidance, it is sometimes the parish council that is turned to especially in new housing developments.

By becoming a parish councillor, you become someone your community will look to for help, guidance and support and as a community leader with the opportunity to influence decisions for the benefit of the people you serve. Seeing your community change for the better, as a result of decisions you have helped make, is something that can give you a sense of achievement and pride.

WHAT DECISIONS DO PARISH COUNCILS MAKE?

Parish councils make all kinds of decisions on issues that affect the local community. The most common topics that EPC gets involved with are planning matters (Parish Councils are statutory consultees), managing leisure facilities including Edlesborough Green and the parish allotments, managing community facilities including Edlesborough Memorial Hall and Edlesborough Cemetery, and campaigning for and delivering better services and facilities. Edlesborough Parish Council has recently taken on a number of services previously performed by Buckinghamshire Council and will seek to do more in the future. (Note - The Parish Council is not responsible for Dagnall and Northall village halls or Dagnall Recreation Ground, although it does contribute towards their upkeep).

It's true to say that on their own, parish councils have limited powers to make decisions. But they do have the opportunity to negotiate with, and the opportunity to influence, those other organisations that do make the final decisions (such as Buckinghamshire Council, police etc)

In this respect parish councils can be extremely influential. The organisations that make the final decisions know that a parish council gives the best reflection of how a community feels about something, and its views will be taken seriously.

HOW MUCH TIME DOES IT TAKE UP?

Councils usually meet once a month for the council meeting, to which members of the public are also invited. Meetings may last two or three hours, depending on the agenda set for the meeting to discuss. Edlesborough Parish Council has sub-groups or Working Parties to deal with specific subjects, such as the new pavilion. In addition to the regular meetings, sometimes Edlesborough Parish councillors are required to attend other meetings representing the council, for example acting as a representative on an outside body, community activities or helping develop a new project for the community. Such meetings won't happen every day, so it's not going to take over your life.

HOW LONG DOES A PARISH COUNCILLOR SERVE FOR?

Once elected, parish councillors sit on the council for a maximum of four years. If they then want to stay in the post they can stand for re-election. The next elections are scheduled for May 2025.

AM I ELIGIBLE TO BE A PARISH COUNCILLOR?

To stand for election on a parish council, you must:

- be a UK or commonwealth citizen, or
- be a citizen of the Republic of Ireland, or
- be a citizen of another Member state of the European Union.
- be a least 18 years old.

To be eligible to stand for an election for a particular parish, you must:

- be registered on the electoral roll of the parish, or

- during the previous 12 months have worked in the parish (as your principal or only place of work), or
- for the whole of the previous 12 months lived in the parish or within three miles of the parish boundary.

You don't have to be connected to a political party. In fact, Edlesborough Parish Council is non-political. If you do become a parish councillor you will have to sign up to the Code of Conduct.

WHAT POWERS DO PARISH COUNCILS HAVE?

They have a wide range of powers which essentially related to local matters, such as looking after community buildings, open space, allotments, play areas, street lighting, bus shelters and more. The council also has the power to raise money through taxation, the precept. The precept is the parish council's share of the council tax. The precept demand goes to the billing authority, Buckinghamshire Council, which collects the tax for the parish council.

PARISH DUTIES

The duties and functions of a parish council are many and varied.

The Council meets monthly and considers planning applications and any other matters referred to it by local residents, Buckinghamshire Council and by central government. All meetings are open to the public and there is an open forum before the start of the meeting at which members of the public can raise concerns and ask questions. There is also an annual parish meeting which all parishioners are invited to attend. All meetings are advertised on the parish council notice boards and website. At each meeting, residents can bring to the attention of the parish council anything that concerns them, either directly or through our clerk, Penny Pataky. If matters raised at the meeting are not the responsibility of the council, the clerk can give them information on how to contact the relevant authority. Details are also on our website

DON'T TAKE OUR WORD FOR IT!

The best way to find out what it's like to be a parish councillor is to talk to someone who's doing it now. Come along to a parish council meeting or speak to one of our councillors and find out what they think of the job. Contact details for everyone on the parish council are on our website.
